BROOKLET

FOREWORD

Brookville, Indiana

May 15, 1937

To Our Readers:

This is the first issue of a yearbook for Brookville High School in many years and is intended to bring you by means of the printed word and carefully chosen pictures a resume of the years activities with the school.

The name was suggested by George Cherry, a member of the class of 1938. The photography was done by Keller's Studio. The engraving is the work of The Repro Engraving Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, while the printing was handled by the Journalism class on the school press.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the above for the part that they have taken in making this yearbook a success. In addition we would like to express our sincere thanks to Mrs. Ernest Showalter for her help in obtaining material for preparing the History of Brookville School, and to the Brookville Democrat for their kind assistance in producing this book.

It is our sincere hope that this issue of "The Brooklet" may bring you many fond memories of your school days, and if this is accomplished we shall feel well rewarded for our efforts.

History Of The Brookville School

From a village, consisting of a hand full of log huts, its only street dotted with stumps, to a modern, thriving community of the twentieth century, the town of Brookville has grown.

Likewise from the most humble beginning of a seminary in the Valley to a modern plant, equipment, and corps of teachers, which fulfill the most rigid requirements of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, Brookville High School has come.

The first genuine high school training began in 1827. At this time, a legislative act granted the Circuit Courts of those counties that desired seminaries, the power to appoint a board of trustees. This board, consisting of Thos. W. Colescott, Abraham Lee, and Lemuel Snow, purchased lots 87 and 88 in Allen's plot of the town of Brookville for the erection of the seminary. The seminary required that all students pay tuition, and all expenses, such as fuel and apparatus, depended on a "Penal Fund." Geography, later Latin, Algebra, and Geometry were added to the regular curriculum.

The new Constitution in 1852 provided for a free school system and consequently, tuition seminaries went out of existence. The seminary building was then occupied occasionally by private schools until 1860 when it was purchased for a public school by the school trustees. It was used as such until 1873. Since 1873, it has been occupied as a residence.

After the decline of the seminary, an educational rivalry ensued between two religious denominations, the Methodists and the Presbyterians. The Presbyterians, under the direction of Rev. R. B. Abbott, conducted a high school in the basement of their church. Prior to this time, in 1852, the Methodists established Brookville College. It was built where the present high school building stands. The plans for this college were brought from New Jersey, and, after being approved by one of Cincinnati's most prominent architects, were adopted. This is the only institution of higher learning that Brookville ever had.

The college curriculum consisted of three departments: Primary, academic and collegiate. Tuition of two dollars per quarter was charged in the primary department, three dollars in the academic department, and five dollars in the collegiate department.

The subjects taught in the academic course were as follows: English, grammar, geography, arithmetic, analysis, aids to composition, U. S. history and philosophy.

The collegiate department offered algebra, ancient history, bookkeeping, parsing, Latin grammar, botany, modern history, natural history, Greek, logic chemistry, trigonometry, and astronomy.

The first class to graduate, in 1855, consisted of only four girls. Slowly the number enrolled increased, until in 1858, it reached 200. During the entire existence of the college, a total of 59 students graduated.

The college ended its short, but honorable life in 1871 because of the lack of income and the keen competition of neighboring schools. This building, sold to the town of Brookville for a public school in 1873, was torn down in 1912 and replaced by the present structure.

At the beginning of our present school system, which dates from the purchase of the old Brookville College in 1873, Mr. A. W. Biegle was employed as superintendent. In the three years of his employment, the total enrollment in grades and high school increased from 198 to 360.

In 1876, John E. Morton was employed as the second superintendent. He introduced a system of entrance examinations. Mr. Morton resigned in 1881 to take up the profession of dentistry in Brookville.

Mr. Hubert M. Skinner, an outstanding educator in Indiana and a DePaw University graduate, was appointed to succeed Mr. Morton. He served until 1884 when he resigned to accept an offer as deputy state superintendent of public instruction. He re-organized the high school course with the result that there were no graduating classes in 1882, 1883, and 1884.

From 1882 to 1901 the schools were under the administration of five different superintendents: Albert N. Crecraft (1882-84); C. W. McClure (1885-93); E. M. Teeple (1893-95); Mr. Harter (1895-99), and Hubert S. Vorhees (1899-1901). During this period various improvements in methods were introduced and enrollment increased.

H. Lester Smith, present Dean of School of Education at Indiana University and principal under Mr. Vorhees, proved a very successful superintendent.

J. W. Scott, the next superintendent, is well remembered for his attempt to establish a book fund and a commensurate library. He also began the custom of allowing teachers to attend the meetings of the Indiana State Teachers' Association.

A. J. Reifel served as superintendent for twenty years (1909-1929). It was during his administration that the present high school building was erected and later equipped from the receipts of entertainments and lectures. Athletics were increased as the result of a new gym, which though adequate then, has since been remodeled and is now used for the industrial arts shop.

The present superintendent, Mr. Charles L. Zuck, accepted his position in 1929. Under Mr. Zuck's supervision, five courses of study were introduced. The academic course preparing a student for college entrance; the commercial, emphasizing business training; the vocational agriculture, providing farm training; Home Economics, prepares girls for efficient home-making; and the other course, Industrial Arts, forms a foundation for boys who are interested in mechanics.

The first class graduated in 1877. This class consisted of three people, one of whom, Mrs. Fred Converse (Mattie Creswell), of Chattanooga, Tenn., is still living. The total of graduates, including 1936 amounts to 1000. The largest graduating class prior to this year was in 1936 with a class of 46.

The commercial course, started in 1929, has proven a very popular course. Two years of stenography and one year of bookkeeping are offered. Many of the students who completed the two-year course in stenography have gone into stenographic work with a few months additional work in a business college and several have secured positions immediately upon graduation from high school, with no additional training.

The vocational agriculture course was introduced in 1936. Its purpose is to provide practical farm training for the rather large number of farm boys who attend school here. There were 44 boys enrolled the first year and 54 the second.

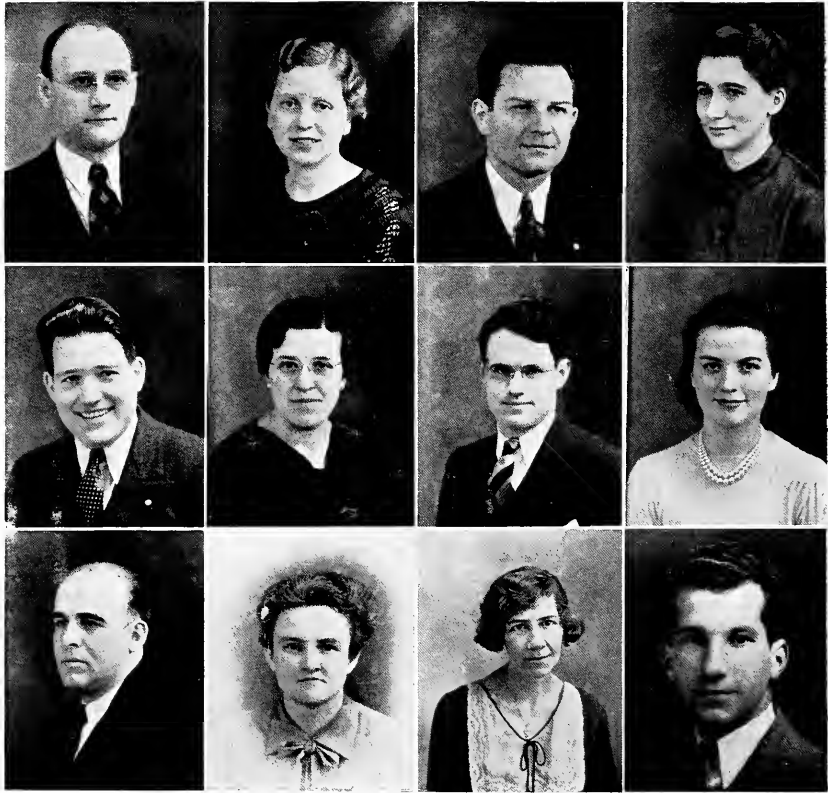

In 1931 the Gen. Lew Wallace building was constructed. This building has a combined gymnasium-auditorium 78'3" by 60' with a stage 51'11" by 17'3" and a seating capacity of approximately 700. This is used by both the elementary school and the high school. After this building was erected the type of organization was changed to the six-six plan, with the Junior-Senior high school in the old building. These upper six grades now fill this building to capacity. Many changes have been made in this building. During the summer of 1936 the floor of the old gym, once the pride of the county, was raised to the level of the rest of the basement and it now makes an excellent industrial arts shop.

Brookville High was first accredited by the State Department of Public Instruction in 1878 and was granted a conditional commission in 1909. It now has the highest rating possible, being a first class commissioned school and accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools since 1925.

Enrollment has grown rather rapidly during the past several years. The enrollment in the four year high school for the past nine years is given below. Figures in each case are enrollment on October 1st of each year.

As Juniors we chose Miss Emma Petersen and Mr. H. Paul Cly as sponsors. The officers were: President, Bayard Quick; vice-president, Kathleen Tague; secretary-treasurer, Ray Pelsor. During this year we presented "The Unexpected Guest" on November 25, 1935. We took in about $102. In May we gave the Junior-Senior Reception in the Lew Wallace Gym.

As Seniors, our sponsors were Miss Pauline McDonald and Mr. Frank Todd. The officers were: President, Kathleen Tague; vice-president, Roy Bruns; secretary, Alvina Ritz; treasurer, Harold Nutty. We chose for our class motto, "Out of the Harbor Into a Boundless Sea." Class flowers are sweet pea and lily-of-the-valley. Class colors are black and gold.

The basket-ball players of our class were: Stanley White, Harold Nutty, Evan (Konk) Osborn, Roy Bruns, and Robert Holman. In 1937 Stanley White was chosen as an A-No. 1 center on the Sectional Team.

The Junior Class

THE SENIORS OF TO MORROW

History of Junior Class

In September 1936, fifty-two young men and women walked into the Brookville High School building to embark on their third year of high school work in this institution.

Two years previous, they had entered the same building as a happy, carefree group of ninety-eight to be enrolled as Freshmen. Little did they realize what the future held in store for them. Naturally they copied the higher classes, so the first accomplishment of the Rhinies was to elect class officers. Edward Glaser, Jr., was elected president, Bertha Edwards was vice-president, Francis Mischel was secretary-treasurer. The class sponsors chosen were Mr. Thomas and Miss Gant. Several of the Freshmen joined the Band and the Orchestra, several boys played on the second team in basketball and one Freshman had a major role in the school operetta.

The next year this same group came back seventy strong, a little more sophisticated and industrious. The class officers elected were Joseph Brownfield, president; Genevieve Chambers, vice-president; Edwin Alsmann, secretary; and Geraldine Gardner, treasurer. The class sponsors were Miss Crawford and Mr. Rybolt. Three Sophomores played on the second team; three boys were initiated in the Hi-Y Club; several girls joined the Girl Reserves, and seven Sophomores had major roles in the operetta. Many other class members were included in the chorus.

This year, the Juniors are a hard-working, ambitious group of students. The officers are: Marilyn Woodmansee, president; Genevieve Chambers, vice-president; Stanley Grad, secretary, and Jean Meyer, treasurer. Two Juniors made the Varsity Basketball team; three members were initiated into the Hi-Y Club, and other extra-curricular subjects were well represented by the Juniors. The class play given was "Loose Moments." It was a very entertaining play and very well received.

The Juniors are looking forward to their Senior year with anxious eyes, endeavoring to make it their very best.

The High School Band

The Band organized early in the fall of this year, by electing the following officers: Walter Biltz, president; Stanley Grad, vice-president, and Winifred McDonald, secretary-treasurer. This group has played at every home game and has given four splendid floor drills. Last fall they marched in the parade for a political rally. Four Seniors will receive honor awards for four years' service in the Band. They are: Robert Cornett, Georgia Corya, Clifford Fath and Hazel Mullin.

The Music Department

The Music Department has completed another successful year with Mr. Rybolt as director. One of the most successful entertainments was the Band Benefit, "Campus Days." The leading roles were played by Brucella Briggs and Robert Charni. The net profit was the largest any school function, here, has ever brought.

The Orchestra is somewhat smaller this year than last and is progressing slowly but surely. There is no regular period for orchestra and those students participating are required to miss some class. Work that is missed must be prepared but no outside assignments are given. Enrollment includes, Genevieve Chambers, James Smith, Georgia Corya, Hazel Mullin, Mary K. Redeleman, Robert Ritter, Charles Zuck, Jr., Margaret Smith, Mary L. Mode, Robert Cornett, Stanley Grad, John Siebert, Clifford Fath and Winifred McDonald.

The operetta given this year was, "Ask the Professor" with Peggy Rusterholz, Ray Pelsor and a fine supporting cast carrying off the laurels. The enthusiastic audience proclaimed it one of the best operettas ever given in Brookville.

The Girls' Sextette, consisting of Louise Updike, Hazel Mullin, Maxine Watterson, Georgia Corya, Marjorie Smith, and Margaret Manley, has proved very popular this year. The costumes of paisley print have not only lent atmosphere to the group but have brought admiration wherever the girls sang. The Sextette has appeared too many times to list performances. Suffice it to say that programs have ranged from fifteen minutes to one and one-half hours.

Brookville Hi-Y.

The purpose of the Hi-Y Club is to create and maintain throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

The Brookville Hi-Y Club is composed of thirty members. The regular meeting day is the second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Each member is responsible for a program sometime during the year. Our officers for the past year were: Harold Nutty, president; Stanley White, vice president; Bayard Quick, secretary, and James Blackburn, treasurer. Officers for next year: Marcellus Meyer, president; Stanley Grad, vice president; Fred Charni, treasurer and Norbert Ricdman, secretary.

When Mr. Winks left at Christmas, Mr. Rybolt was chosen the club sponsor. Officers were sent to the state convention at Indianapolis. The club is rapidly gaining its place among the school organizations and has big plans for next year.

Girl Reserves

The Girl Reserves, which is a branch of the Y. W. C. A., was organized at Brookville High School in 1927. The girls try to carry out the purpose of the club, which is: I will do my best to honor God, my country and my community, to help other girls and to be in all ways loyal, true members of the Girl Reserves. Their slogan is: Face life squarely.
